Reykjanes Peninsula Day tours – Nature and Wildlife Watching

In this tour you will be traveling with an expert Icelandic birdwatching guide through this mysterious and breathtaking area of rugged and harsh treeless volcanic landscapes. Reykjanes Peninsula is located directly on the Mid-Atlantic ridge and is on the margin of the Eurasian and North American plates.

Birds on the peninsula such as Harlequin Duck, Great Northern Loon, Horned Grebe, Northern Gannet, Great Cormorant, Kittiwake, Arctic Tern, three species of murre and Razorbill are among those that might be seen during the day. Other wildlife species such as Harbor and Grey seals, White-beaked Dolphins and Minke Whales are also common in the area and you might be able to see them from land.

Being situated on the margin of the two tectonic plates, Reykjanes Peninsula gives you a good idea of how Iceland is being torn apart by the forces beneath your feet and evidence such as volcanic rock, lava, fissures, and gorges will be around you most of the day.

By keeping the group size small your guides are able to keep the itinerary flexible, depending on client's requests and preferences, weather, and time of year.

A fantastic tour with a great combination of breathtaking nature and interesting wildlife!

Price is $181 per person.

Included: transportation, hotel pick-up and expert English speaking guide.

Departures: Every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 09:00 am from April through July.

Snaefellsnes Peninsula Day tours – Nature and Wildlife Watching

Snaefellsnes Peninsula is arguably one of the best places in Iceland for Nature and Wildlife watching during summer. On this tour you can expect to see a great variety of bird species, including Harlequin Duck, Atlantic Puffin, Thick-billed Murre, Arctic Tern and White-tailed Eagle.

The area features extraordinary moorland, meadows, marshland, rivers, streams, and small ponds along beautiful rock formations, and sand beaches. The major landmark is Snæfellsjökull glacier which is renowned for its mystical powers and has captured the imagination of people all over the world, ever since Jules Verne wrote "The Journey to the Centre of the Earth" in 1871.

By keeping the group size small the guides are able to keep the itinerary flexible, depending on client's requests and preferences, weather and time of year.
